example typewritten document this is a document written with a typewriter on a piece of paper typewritten documents have structure documents typed onto a physical piece of paper contain structured text that uses structural elements such as sentences paragraphs a document title sections with headings unordered lists like this one ordered lists tables the technical publishing industry sometimes uses the term structured text to mean specifically documents written in an XML language however even a document typed with a typewriter onto a physical piece of paper has structured text typewritten documents can have tables documents typed with a typewriter can even have text structured using tables as in the following example typewriters computers good for distraction-free writing storing documents instant printing researching information a tactile writing workflow not good for frequent editing of text writing where there is no electricity sharing documents across distances